BOOK PROJECTS

MARKET AS A MODEL: NEOLIBERAL REASON AND LATE NEOCLASSICAL ECONOMICS

This book intends to offer theoretical genealogy of neoliberalism through a reading of the history of the neoclassical tradition (ranging from the Chicago approach with its insistence on the categorical efficiency of markets to the post-Walrasian skein of neoclassical economics with its emphasis on market failures and remedial institutional design) and its correlate, Austrian economics, of their differences and struggles, of their transformations through and in response to a number of controversies, and of their shifting roles in shaping the agendas of economic research and policy debates. The aim is to move beyond the commonplace understandings of neoliberalism as a range of economic policies (e.g., deregulation, privatization, trade liberalization, price stabilization) and to identify and engage critically with the very core of the onto-political project of neoliberalism: the governance of the social through the interface of homo economicus.

SEXUATING CLASS: A PSYCHOANALYTICAL CRITIQUE OF POLITICAL ECONOMY

(with Ceren Özselçuk)

This book intends to offer both a critical appraisal of the history of the difficult yet persistent relationship among the various traditions of Marxian and Freudian thinking and an alternative framework to articulate them together in a manner that envisions communism not as a utopian ideal but rather as a new way of relating to “enjoyment”—a key and foundational psychoanalytical concept that the authors believe modern political economy cannot afford to ignore in its analyses of the forms of contemporary capitalism as well as their emancipatory alternatives.
